Letter To Ordinance Book,

Following my taking office as Supervisor of Apolacon Township of Susquehanna County, Pennsylvania, and then being appointed as the Chairman, I was told by the previous administration that I had all the records of the township which dated back to 1972. I also found that ordinances were not posted to an Ordinance Book, in some cases ordinances were found attached to the Minutes of Meeting and in others were filed loose.

After attending a workshop for new supervisors and reading about the proper procedure for the posting of ordinances, I posted all of the ordinances in an ordinance book. I also created an index which indicated the page and book number of the Minutes of Meeting where the specific ordinance was adopted.

On January 18, 1987, I was informed by a resident of Apolacon that a Mr. James Myerick, Bowbridge Road, Apolacon Township had a couple of boxes of Apolacon Township Papers in his garage. Upon receiving the four (4) large boxes of papers, I proceeded to sort them and found Minutes of Meeting books which dated back to 1909. In these Minutes of Meeting were found additional ordinances of the township which were dated prior to the ordinances which I had posted.

In order to provide a central depository for ordinances I have included copies of these older ordinances in the Apolacon Township Ordinance Book. This, however, does not produce a chronological listing of the ordinances. I have left the original ordinances attached to their respective minutes of meeting.

Along with the papers found were a number of other valuable documents pertaining to Roads which were taken over and also dropped from the Township as well as the Deed for the property which the townhouse sets on.
